Business Places, Schools Closed on Thanksgiving

Antioch Will Celebrate The Holiday In Usual Quiet Way

Thanksgiving Day will be given over largely to rest or recreation by most Antioch people and business will be at a standstill. Most business houses will be closed for the entire day.

The usual family dinners with visiting no doubt will be the order of the day and a certain amount of hunting for wild game will be done. Schools will close on Wednesday for the rest of the week.

Richard Whitacre, principal of the grade school said that his school would be dismissed at noon Wednesday.

Principal T. R. Birkhead said that the high school would be dismissed at the close of the day's program. He said there was a possibility that there might be an assembly program but that plans were not definite. The basketball team will play Grant High at Ingleside in the evening.

Antioch ministers will devote their Sunday sermons to subjects fitting to Thanksgiving.

Sheahan Barn Burns Near Lake Villa Sunday

A small barn on the Dan Sheehan farm on Grand ave., near Lake Villa burned late Sunday afternoon.

The flames had a good start when members of the family were attracted to it by the flickering of lights in the house which were connected to wires leading to the barn.

John Effinger, hunting nearby, saw the fire much earlier and being unable to get a telephone call through, drove into Lake Villa notifying the fire department. The barn was nearly gone when the firemen arrived.

The barn was about 30x30 feet in size and contained a small quantity of grain and machinery. There was no stock in it. Insurance will cover much of the loss, it was said.

Junior Class Play Last Week Quite Successful; Large Crowds Present

Enthusiastic applause accompanied the closing of the final curtain of the play, "Miss Adventure", a comedy presented by the Junior Class last Thursday and Friday nights. Although the audience of the first night was not quite so large as that of the second, both were large and they both seemed to enjoy the escapades of tomboy Jo Carter, as well as the sarcastic scoldings of housekeeper Sarah Haskins, the flirtations of giggling Becky, and the dull-wittedness of the farmhand Cyrus. All members of the cast helped make the play full of laughs.

Handsome farmer Brown, at first bewildered by the unusual behavior of his farmhand, Jo Carter, who is masquerading as a boy, soon discovered that Jo was a girl and immediately fell in love. Such a situation naturally delighted the audience of both nights.

Miss Jeannette Darrough director of the play and her stage crew and committees worked diligently along with the cast, to make "Miss Adventure" a success.

Bills Home on Main Street Is Ransacked Wednesday

Burglars ransacked the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Bills on north Main street Wednesday evening while they were attending the theatre. Although all drawers and cupboards had been opened and thoroughly searched, nothing was taken except a small amount of money from Mrs. Bills' purse.

The Bills home was unlocked during the evening and the burglars evidently entered through the door. A dog which was confined in a room at the rear of the house was released by the thieves, and was loose in the house when the Bills returned home.

Mr. Bills is owner of the Lake Buick company of Fox Lake, and has made his home in Antioch for about two years.

No clue as to the identity of the burglars has been reported as yet, but law enforcement officials are working on the case.

State Safety Patrolman Says Parents Negligent In Aiding Safety Plans

DePew Speaks Before PTA Monday—They Plan a Benefit Party

Calling on the parents to co-operate with school authorities in their safety program, Sgt. John DePew of the Illinois Highway Safety patrol, told members of the Antioch grade school P. T. A. that too many of them are a hindrance to the cause.

Sgt. DePew talked at length on the careless use of bicycles and said that too many parents are allowing their children to "ride double" in violation of the law.

"Mother fearing that one child will be late to school if allowed to walk, will permit him to ride with another child on a bicycle which is against safety rules," he said.

The school program calls for studies in safety once each week but careless parents defeat this program, DePew said. While he stressed bicycle dangers, he also talked of jaywalking and improper driving of automobiles.

He was introduced by Mrs. William Gray, vice president, and program chairman. Don Berkheiser, president, had charge of the meeting, and the sixth grade mothers served refreshments.

The association is planning for its card party and dance Saturday evening at the school. High school students will also provide entertainment, an orchestra directed by Mary Jean Mapleshorpe having arranged to play a few numbers.

The proceeds to the party will go to the movie machine fund.

Antioch Hi Teams Start Basketball Season With Victories Over Warren

Meet Barrington Here in Conference Matches Friday Night

Antioch High school's basketball teams got off to a good start this season with victories over Warren Township High at Gurnee Tuesday afternoon.

It was just the start of morale building that should send the boys into their conference schedule tomorrow evening here against Barrington with confidence. The games will start at 7 p. m.

The varsity won from Warren 39 to 28 and the Sophomore-Freshman team 39 to 23.

Coach Maurice R. Kruzan started Kraft and Mattson at forwards, Buchta at center, and Poulos and Bratrude at guards but ran in Apparatis, Bartlett and Thompson, forwards; Wells, center; and Kulogowski and Holem at guard as the game progressed.

The score at the first quarter was 6 to 6, and at the half 16 to 13 in Antioch's favor. The Sequoits were never headed thereafter and at the third quarter the score was 23-19 and at the end 39 to 26.

Coach Kruzan was quite pleased with their control of rebounds and said that if their shooting under the basket had been more accurate the score would have been lopsided.

Coach Payne's Freshman-Sophomore team did equally as well and the younger group is developing some fine material. The quarter scores were 18-5, 25-13, 38-18, and 39-25.

The starting lineup was Wilton, center; Zoellner and Geng, guards; Tilton and Mahoney, forwards. Others who saw action were Poulos, Wizek, Haveland and Kennedy.

Seek Medal for Channel Lake Boy Who Alerted Community at Cooper Fire

Friends of Ronald Frederic Arndt, 14, of Channel lake, are said to be recommending him for a Boy Scout medal because of his alertness in reporting the fire which took the life of Miss Jenny Cooper recently.

Ronnie, leaving for school at 7:55 a. m. saw smoke pouring from the roof of the Cooper house, ran at once to the house and getting no response to his calls from Mrs. Cooper, ran home and told his mother to call the fire department.

He then ran to the home of Harold Olson who he knew had several fire extinguishers and then ran back to the burning house. Ronnie and a neighbor, Mrs. Johnson, tried to open the back door but owing to an obstruction could not get in. Mr. Olson went to the front of the building to fight the fire.

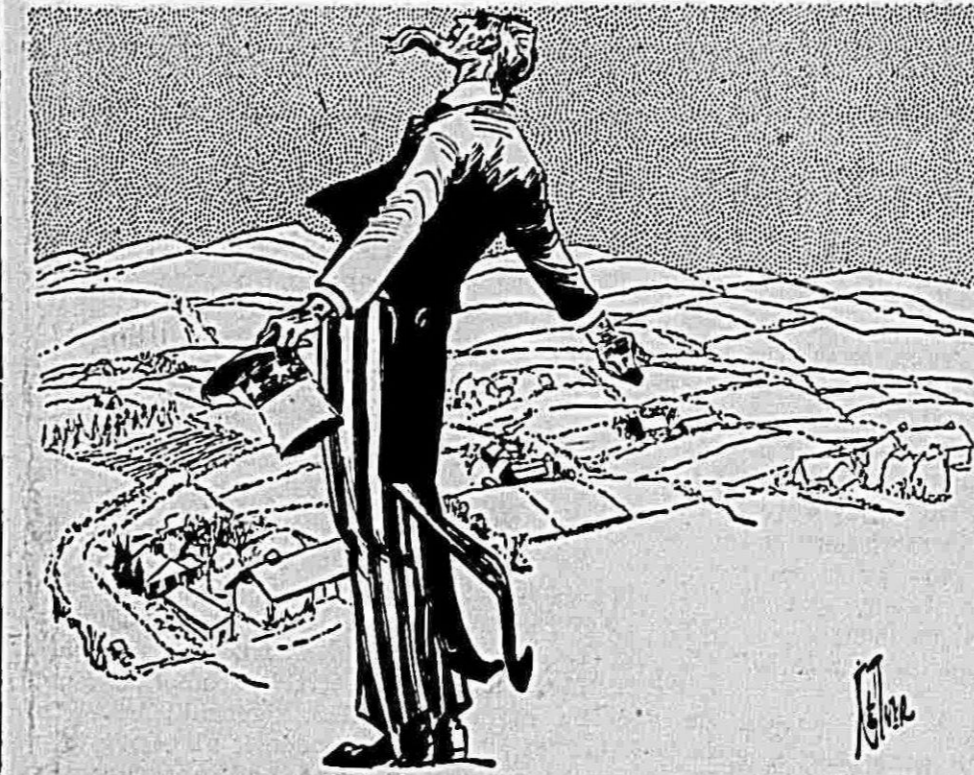

By the time the boy got into the house the fire department arrived and took charge. They found Mrs. Cooper dead.

Ronnie had been a Boy Scout but a few weeks when the incident occurred. The boys of the troop were so proud of his action that they took a collection and purchased him a new uniform.

Three Buildings, 27 Boats Burn in Channel Lake Fire

Loss to R. J. Webb and J. R. Boyle and Son, Will Total $85,000

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the John R. Boyle and Son, and R. J. Webb boat repair and storage houses including a garage housing the town highway equipment at Channel Lake Sunday morning with a loss estimated at $85,000.

The fire started in the Boyle repair shop, formerly the Brinkman Boat and Motors shop, and was discovered by Mr. Boyle who was working on the outside of the building.

The Boyle place, a frame structure, 40x70 feet in size was destroyed with its contents comprising 27 boats of different types, and the household goods and personal belongings of the owner in a second floor apartment.

An adjoining building 90x20 feet in size with a sheet metal siding, containing 12 speed boats, was the property of Commissioner R. J. Webb. It and its contents likewise were destroyed. Next to it was a cement block building used by Webb as a garage and repair shop in housing and servicing Antioch town highway equipment. The building and servicing equipment were destroyed but all of the town machinery was saved.

Quonset Huts Saved
Two quonset huts 45 feet distant containing 21 valuable speedboats were undamaged except for broken windows.

Boyle estimated his loss at $37,000 and Webb at $36,000. They had but part insurance.

Boyle said his son, Jack, a partner, had left early on a hunting trip and he got up to do some work in conditioning some boats permitting his wife and daughter-in-law to continue their sleep. He passed through that part of the building where the fire started at 7:30 a. m. but saw no evidence of fire.

At 8:30 he re-entered the building and found flames creeping up one side of the walls. He said he grabbed two carbon dioxide fire extinguishers and used them without much effect and that he tried others in nearby boats without conquering the flames which dropped into an outboard motor boat.

Gave Alarm To Family
Seeing that he was losing the battle he called his wife and daughter-in-law who came to his aid after first calling the Antioch fire department. They tried to save some of the boats but the heat became too intense and (Continued on page 4)

Lester Perry Injured in Auto Crash Sunday

Lester Perry, Antioch youth, suffered a fracture of a collar bone and miraculously escaped death when the car he was driving crashed into a concrete abutment at Sequoit creek bridge west of the village on highway 173 Saturday morning.

The car went into the Ackerman channel, which has recently been dredged to a depth of about 6 feet and was almost entirely under water by eight o'clock when it was discovered by Jack Flanagan of the State highway patrol. He immediately called the Antioch rescue squad and Captain Herman Holbek and Everett Oftedal of the squad responded to the call.

Holbek managed to identify the car as one belonging to Elmer Hawkins, and immediately put in a telephone call to find whether or not there were any passengers in the automobile. Hawkins reported that Perry had had the car and it was found that he had been able to get out of the car, although he doesn't know exactly how.

Two tow trucks and a truck equipped with a winch were required to remove the car from the channel.

Labor is Big Business

In an illuminating editorial appearing in the United States News, David Lawrence recently pointed out that labor fixes price—yet is exempt from the anti-trust laws. That situation, at a time when the government is bringing anti-trust actions against many large industries, should be thoroughly understood by the American people.

Mr. Lawrence cites the recent coal wage agreement as an example of wage price-fixing. The mine owners had to raise the price of coal to compensate. That led to higher steel prices, which in turn led to higher prices for an innumerable list of commodities. In addition, the railroads' fuel bill was heavily increased—which is the reason, in part, for their having to ask rail rates which, when granted, will give prices another upward nudge.

The argument that wages are not a major influence on prices was proven absurd long ago. In the coal industry, 97 per cent of all income is paid out in wages. In textiles, 91 per cent goes to labor. In machinery and other metal products, 89 per cent is required to meet the payroll. So it goes, down the line. Labor, by both direct and indirect means, can fix prices more surely than any alleged industrial combination in restraint of trade.

Mr. Lawrence writes: "Congress should . . . legislate to include labor unions with other monopolies and prohibit all combinations that fix prices and prevent natural competition." Organized labor is one of the biggest of big businesses these days, with monopolistic powers second only to government. In the name of the national welfare, it should be treated precisely as all other business.

Too Late For Price Control

In a letter to the New York Times, Chester Bowles, once OPA Administrator, said: "I believe it is far too late now to reinstate the price control program."

Mr. Bowles' opinion is especially significant in that he was a strong advocate of continuing OPA for an extended period after the war. And he is certainly not alone in believing that the re-imposition of such controls would be an extremely grave error now. If we are to have price control, we must also have unqualified wage control. We must have governmental domination of every turn of the economic machine. We must have, in short, a planned economy, and what President Truman accurately termed a police state.

We are living again in a supply-and-demand competitive economy. Every manufacturer is seeking to out-perform the factory down the street, and to sell a better product at a lower price. Every kind of store is in intense competition with neighboring stores, and is doing its utmost to attract customers through lower prices, better service, more appealing displays, advertising, etc. Under these conditions prices, whether high or low, honestly reflect the costs of doing business.

Price control would be the best break the black market could have—even as it would undermine the free market. It would be a surrender to totalitarian economics. It is not a sound solution to our problem, and would delay our final adjustment to the law of supply and demand which will finally rule in spite of all price control.

Supplying The Oil Demand

Considerable concern has been expressed over the fuel oil situation this winter. In some sections of the country supplies are short, due to a combination of factors including transportation difficulties and extremely high demand. However, those who know the situation best feel that the shortages will be neither severe nor long-lived. That in itself is a tribute to the efforts of the oil industry in the midwest and other regions where the problem is most severe. Months ago it anticipated the difficulties, and began building up stocks to the limit of storage capacity.

The extent of the demand for oil was one of the surprises of the postwar era. It was almost universally believed that the cessation of war demands would result in a substantial drop in total consumption. Exactly the opposite occurred. Civilian demand for oil products of almost all kinds has made it necessary to produce beyond the peak war figure. And greater consumption is forecast for the future.

Some may wonder why the great refining capacity built for war purposes is not doing more to meet peacetime needs. The reason is that many of the plants were of a special purpose nature, designed to produce aviation and other fuels for which the demand has dropped. As a consequence, the industry has been forced to build new plants and other facilities in the face of the material shortages which have plagued the country. Under the circumstances, it has done a remarkably good job.

Lastly, the intense competition which exists in all the branches of the oil business is a potent force for progress. The company which lags behind would soon see its trade go elsewhere. That, from the standpoint of the public, is one of the greatest virtues of the free competitive system.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the Antioch, Lake Villa and Fox Lake Fire Departments and to our many friends and neighbors for their help in fighting the fire Sunday and for the many acts of kindness shown.

The William Gifford's are leaving today for the South.

Three Bldgs. Burn....

Chief Clete Vos said the entire Boyle building was ablaze when the Antioch department arrived. Bursting oil and fuel containers made the place a roaring inferno.

The intense heat soon ignited the contents of the Webb place adjoining and it too soon was a roaring fire. Work was started removing valuable speed boats from the west end of that building and eight were saved before the men were driven away.

Commissioner and Mrs. Webb, he a firemen, learned of the alarm on leaving church and went to the scene not knowing at first that it was their property that was afire.

First Saved Equipment

Mr. Webb turned his attention first at starting the motors of the highway equipment in the garage so that they could be run out to safety by others. They had barely been removed when the fire reached the garage building and nothing more could be saved.

Mrs. Webb while assisting in the work of saving the boats was overcome and was given first aid treatment by the Antioch Rescue squad. Secretary Clarence Shultis said the Fox Lake and Lake Villa departments were called and although they and the local department with all of the water they wanted at their disposal, had several streams on the blaze, it was of such intensity that little could be done to save the three buildings clustered so near together.

Webb was inclined to believe that during the fire someone broke the windows of the quonset huts, but others believe that the windows were broken by the expanding and contracting of the metal buildings. Not one window was spared, however, and Webb said the heat wasn't enough to singe the door of the nearest quonset hut.

Bought Shop Recently

The Boyles bought the Brinkman place two months ago, the son getting it in part on a GI loan. They have a Chicago residence at 6858 Osceola ave., and are staying there since the fire. They said they had some insurance and that their loss beyond that would run from $18,000 to $22,000. Part of the boats were their own.

The elder Mr. Boyle said his firm plans to re-open in a small way in the spring and that a new fire-proof building would be put up. Commissioner Webb is now seeking a place to house the town highway equipment. He had but little insurance on his buildings which he valued at $12,000. He does not contemplate building until spring.

He was pleased that the three snow plows and road grader were saved because of difficulty in replacing them and too, the town escaped financial loss. They no doubt will be badly needed in the next few months to keep township highways clear. He was sorry to lose his tools, an air compressor and battery chargers.

Property of Chicagoans

He said that most of the boats in his buildings were the property of Chicago people having resort homes. They have insurance which protects them after the boats leave the lakes on Nov. 1. He said that gasoline was drained from all of the boat tanks as required, and the tanks gave no evidence of explosion.

Boyle said he had 10 inboard motorboats, 14 outboard boats and three row boats in his place. Four outboards were recovered from the building with little damage.

THANK YOU!

We are sorry to announce that we are leaving this community due to ill health. I wish to express my sincere thanks to our friends, who have been so very kind to us. I am very grateful to the Vos Bros., Gus Mantis, Mrs. Walsh, Frank Kennedy, Miss Rene Kelly, Mr. O. Hachmeister, Officer Fred Petersen, Mr. Koppen, at the Bank, Robert Wilton, the electrician; Art Meyer, the Golden Bros., The Sheahan Bros., Mr. Burnette and the Williams Bros., Elmer Hunter, Mr. Otto Klass, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, of Lake Shangri-La, and Fred Pierce, taxi service.

It has been a great satisfaction to me and my family to live here and we are truly sorry to have to leave.

Rescue Squad Revives Two at Fosslands Fri.

A faulty exhaust system on a large transport truck was responsible for the near-fatal carbon monoxide poisoning of Robert Morris, 21, and Donald West, 14, both of Holland, Michigan.

The men had stopped their truck at Fosslands for a rest, and had evidently both fallen asleep with the truck's motor running. They were discovered to be unconscious by an attendant at the filling station and the rescue squad was phoned.

Squad members found both men in bad shape and they were revived only after the use of two tanks of oxygen. Members of the squad stayed with the men and administered more oxygen until they were in normal condition before leaving.

Friends Celebrate Fortune, But Lucky Man Is Both Sad and Happy.

CHICAGO.—Many residents of "The Valley," once known as the playground of such noted prohibition figures as Terry Druggan and the late Frankie Lake, celebrated the good fortune of James Mattalina in his apartment and drank his health in good red wine.

Mattalina drank with them, and was glad with them, but he was sad, too, because his good fortune came from the death of his very good friend, Miss Anna Craig, 82, the little lady for whom he was chauffeur for 25 years.

Miss Craig's will, filed for probate, leaves the greater part of her estate, valued at well over $100,000, to Mattalina "for his kind consideration to me at all times."

Grandson Gets Pony.

Mattalina notified of the bequest by Atty. Israel Dordek, shared the news with his wife, Elizabeth, his son, Sam, 30, and a daughter, Mrs. Geraldine Brouil, 29.

"There'll be a spotted pony for my grandson, Wayne," he said, "and a new house." Then he waved his arms in an all-inclusive gesture that took in his two-room flat and the delicatessen store his wife runs in front of the living quarters.

"This place goes for sure," he said. "I'm going to give away every single thing in this store—free!"

He thought this over, however, and changed his mind.

"Something might go wrong," he said, "and I wouldn't get the money."

May Go Over $100,000.

Miss Craig, an eighth child and last of her line, left $20,000 in minor bequests. The residue goes to Mattalina. Dordek said the estate has more than $120,000 liquid assets, plus property outside the state.

Mattalina said he went to work for Miss Craig, and her brother-in-law and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, 25 years ago. Smith, a paving contractor, died three years ago, and Mrs. Smith died last year.

Dordek, asked how Mattalina received the news, answered with typical legal restraint.

"How would you receive it?" he asked. "He was glad—happy."

War Crimes Suspect Kills Himself in Prison Cell

TOKYO.—The first suicide among the hundreds of closely guarded war crimes suspects held in Sugamo prison was disclosed by Eighth army officials, who said Superior Police Officer Waichi Ogawa strangled himself in his cell.

Ogawa, said Ogawa, held in connection with the beheading of two Australian soldiers, knotted his undershirt into a rope, and tied it to the bars and a faucet. They gave him the rope.

Ogawa was imprisoned June 30 for investigation. After days of questioning, the Australian division of Allied headquarters' legal section transferred him to another cell block as a war crimes suspect.

Kiss Upsets Balance and Wife Is Killed in Fall

NORFOLK, VA. — Joseph V. Welsio, 22, sat on the porch rail of his second floor apartment, eating ice cream.

Mrs. Anna Marie Welsio, his 17-year-old wife, walked to him, threw her arms about him and leaned over to kiss him.

Welsio lost his balance and toppled over the rail. His wife grabbed him and was dragged over with him.

Mrs. Welsio died of a fractured skull several hours later.

Her husband was released from a hospital after treatment for severe bruises.

Curse Brings Stupor To Two Indian Girls

Strange Rites Are Performed by Witch Doctor.

BEATTY, NEV.—Crouched in a little mountain shack, a witch doctor rattled tin cans filled with rocks to break a powwow curse on two pretty Indian maidens. The girls, twins in their early twenties, lay in a stupor.

Another witch doctor, a woman, cast the spell on the girls when their father, Long Jim, refused to give her a blanket. She cursed the girls, telling them they had been shot with poisoned arrows.

According to Bob Revert, sheriff's deputy, the first witch doctor showed up at a powwow memory of another one of Long Jim's daughters who had been killed in an automobile accident. She demanded that Long Jim give her a blanket which had belonged to the dead girl.

"She became angry when he refused," Revert said.

"She went through a lot of hocus pocus and then told the girls: 'Now you're dead,'" he said. "Then she disappeared."

"The girls went into trances immediately afterwards," he said.

The second witch doctor insisted the woman doctor actually included poison arrows in the curse.

"We couldn't see any arrows or any wounds, however," Revert said.

"The witch doctor said only a witch doctor could see them."

"They may have been shot with arrows and they may be dead to the Indians but as far as we're concerned, their hearts beat, they have pulses and they breathe."

Revert said he and W. H. Thomas, Nye county sheriff, found the girls, both "quite pretty," in a hut 8,000 feet up the Mount Charleston range north of here.

Long Jim refused to let them touch or move the girls. He said his witch doctor had said it would take him 10 days to cure them.

Authorities plan no further action in the case.

Pair Jailed for Keeping Girl, 9, in Attic Prison

CLEVELAND.—The parents of a 9-year-old girl were accused by police of keeping the child a virtual prisoner in a hot, unfinished attic during the summer heat wave.

The couple, Kirby Breese, 32, and his wife, 22, were arrested after neighbors complained the girl, Jacqueline, was being mistreated.

"The child apparently was hardly ever allowed out of the attic unless neighbors came and asked if she could go to the store with them," police said. "Last July policemen warned them about keeping Jacqueline there."

The child's bed was in the attic but otherwise it was unfurnished. The temperature in the garret was close to 120.

"She hadn't been fed anything," police said. "Wells were on her face and you could see the imprint of a woman's wedding ring."

The only reason given by Mrs. Breese for keeping the child in the attic was that "she wet the bed."

Murder and Suicide Put Finish to Family Spat

CLEVELAND.—Orphaned by his father's suicide, Frank Robertson Jr., 20, sat in jail charged with killing the 36-year-old housekeeper who lived at his home.

It was a quarrel between his father and the housekeeper, Caroline Miles, that led to both their deaths, said young Robertson.

Robertson Sr., 50, shot himself during that quarrel—on a dare, according to the boy.

"I came running out," the son said. "Father was lying in the kitchen. She came running in. I don't remember how I picked up the gun, but I shot her."

The youth has been charged with manslaughter and bound over to the grand jury on $5,000 bond.

Lover of Puzzles, 15, Hanged Self; Leaves Big Riddle

CLAIRTON, PA.—Deputy Coroner George Thomas reported that Alphonse Capocella, 15, hanged himself in an attic bedroom of his parents' home here. His death left a greater riddle than the puzzles he loved to work on in life.

The body was found by the boy's mother, Mrs. Maria Capocella. Grief-stricken, she could ascribe no reason for her son's death. He left no note and had not been despondent, she told the Allegheny county official.

Vanishing America

Since 1900, the Indian population of the United States has increased from 237,000 to 377,000. Authorities say that America's forests, also popularly considered to be vanishing, would grow more wood annually than we cut if forest management is correctly applied and our forests are protected against fire. So persistent is nature's urge to grow trees that seed-trees left in modern logging operations soon spread a carpet of new growth over forest land to produce a new stand of timber. Fires are the greatest destroyers of these young trees which may be the forests of tomorrow.

First Woolen Mill

Jungle Pygmies Hunt Elephants; Fear White Man

Priest Visits Congo Tribe;
People Run Like Deers, Climb Like Monkeys.

WARE, MASS.—The Rev. Pierre L'Heureux, 35-year-old American missionary with the order of White Fathers, brought out the latest reports of a strange tribe of elephant-hunting pygmies who can run as fast as a deer and climb trees with a monkey's agility. The tribe is still hiding out from the white man in the Belgian Congo. The priest has just returned after eight years in Africa.

The pygmies, ranging in height from four feet four inches to four feet eight inches, were described by the priest as a jolly, carefree people who spend all of their time hunting.

"They are a nomadic tribe who do not cultivate the land or grow anything," he said. "All they want to do is hunt. They barter their bag with other natives for food."

The little men, he said, were "completely fearless of everything in the wild jungle country—except white men."

"The only way I was able to approach them was through the chief of another native tribe," said Father L'Heureux. "Once assured I meant them no harm, they proved a friendly people."

Call Hunts a Ritual.
The Ware priest said the pygmies used poisonous arrows and spears in their elephant hunts, which were a ritual with them.

"They wound an elephant with an arrow and then move so swiftly the elephant does not know where the next attack is coming from," he said. "It's amazing the way they can hide in the undergrowth."

"Once an elephant has been attacked, one of the pygmies will jump on its hind legs—holding on with one hand while using the other to cut into the hide with a sharp piece of metal until he cuts a tendon."

"Then they finish off the elephant with spears and cut it open—walk into the carcass as if it were a tent."

Father L'Heureux said the pigmy tribe—numbering about 6,000—seemed to enjoy hunting as a sport as well as a means of existence and that the tribesmen knew the wild animals better than any of the other natives.

The skin of the Congo pygmies around Lake Albert, he said, was a brownish yellow—not as dark as the other African natives. They have jet black kinky hair and wear few ornaments.

Live in Huts.
They live in primitive huts made of tree trunks and branches—loosely constructed that they keep out neither sun nor rain. "All they want to do is to roam the jungles," said the missionary. "They are complete lovers of liberty but want no part of civilization."

Father L'Heureux said he first ran across the pygmies while on an automobile ride with a native chief. "We were about 25 miles from the native village," he said. "When the pygmies saw me they vanished into the jungles as if into thin air."

"The chief with me knew their language and called to one of them, who happened to be the pigmy chief. He asked him to gather other members of the tribe and meet us at the village."

"We drove back about 30 miles an hour. When we got there, hundreds of pygmies were already waiting for us, with their drums."

The Ware priest is one of only 28 Americans in the White Fathers, an international order of 2,600 missionaries with headquarters in Alexandria, North Africa.

Safety Deposit Boxes in Bank Looted for $100,000

TORONTO.—Loot believed to total more than $100,000 was taken from 33 safety deposit boxes of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, police said. They gave no details on how entry was gained.

The case was similar to the recent rifling of safety deposit boxes at a bank in Carp, Ont., in which more than $230,000 was taken.

SHORT STORY

Legacy For Lucy

By MAUDE NORMAN

WHEN John Grahame brought a wife home from England, everyone in Glencove wondered how long the marriage would last.

I had known him ever since he was a spoiled youngster who thought it was fun to see his dog chase my cat. But after I had caught him out in back of the woodshed one day, preparing to set fire to one of my cat's kittens, he had dipped in kerosene, he left me and my cats alone, because I picked up a stick and gave him the thrashing he deserved.

John must have told Lucy some terrible tales about me because she was so scared to death of me at first. But she soon found out I wouldn't bite and we became good friends. That is, good as could be expected with John disliking me. She would run over sometimes when he wasn't home. When I went over there, I would sit by the front window where I could see him coming and duck out before he reached the house.

"I wasn't afraid of him, but I didn't want him bothering at her. She had it hard enough, poor child."

Judge Arnold's mother had come from the same place in England Lucy was from and they became good friends. Lucy could not spare time from her sewing to go away very often, so old Mrs. Arnold would come every week to visit her. Lucy always asked me to come over too. I'd take a plate of cookies with me so there would be something to serve with the usual cup of tea. That was one time John did not object to my being in his house. The fact that the richest woman in town was a friend of his wife overshadowed even my presence.

I had been taking care of Mrs. Arnold and before she died she told me she was leaving Lucy enough money so she would not have to work any more.

I didn't dare upset her by telling her John Grahame would take every penny for himself, so after thinking about it I went to see Judge Arnold and the doctor.

AT FIRST John was speechless when he heard Lucy was to receive a hundred dollars a month. Then he started making plans. "Now I can buy a decent car," he exclaimed, ignoring the fact, as I knew he would, that the money was Lucy's. "A hundred dollars every month. Oh, boy!"

The Judge cleared his throat. "The money is to be paid to your wife, Lucy Grahame, on the first day of every month," he paused impressively—"as long as she lives."

John sat down heavily. "You mean if she dies—the money stops?" The Judge nodded gravely.

But you're well, aren't you, Honey? John cried. I'll wager that was the first time he had called her "Honey" in a long time. "You're fine, aren't you?"

Lucy lay back against the pillow, looking very wan. "I feel terrible," she faltered. "I'm so weak and tired."

"But that's because of the flu, isn't it, doctor?" John asked anxiously. "Tell her she'll be all right." I held my breath, then relaxed at the doctor's answer. "Your wife will need the utmost care in the future, Mr. Grahame," he said soberly. "She must not do anything that will tire her under any consideration."

"I'll take care of her," John exclaimed. "Anything you want done, Honey, just tell me."

The doctor's face remained perfectly blank, but if the Judge had been a less dignified man, I would have declared he winked at me.

I enjoy sitting watching John cut grass and do the chores Lucy had done for so long. She insisted he make a garden and keep it in order. He treats her very differently than he did before. He watches her like a hen with one chick. She understands his solicitude. He is afraid she might die and he would lose the hundred dollars a month. But she enjoys having him wait on her.

Sometimes I wonder what he would say if he knew Mrs. Arnold had left Lucy the money in a lump sum. I don't believe he would appreciate the interpretation we gave the will.

Society Matron Is Convicted of Slavery Charge

Affair Between Negro Maid And First Husband Is Basis of Case.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. — Accused to having breakfast in bed, Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls awoke as a federal slavery convict in the San Diego county jail, without either husband or Dora Jones, her Negro maid, to serve her.

The husband, Alfred Wesley Ingalls, whom the jury was unable to convict or acquit because of disagreement, remained at liberty.

The trial of Mrs. Ingalls, which lasted four weeks and was the first outright slavery case under the Thirteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution since 1850, came to an end with the conviction of Mrs. Ingalls.

'One of the Family'

Mrs. Ingalls, born on Beacon Hill, Boston, a descendant of Colonial Governor Bradford of Massachusetts was sentenced to prison and fined. She later was granted probation.

Dora Jones, now 58, testified on the stand that Mrs. Ingalls had "always" threatened her with jail and hell because of an affair of nearly 40 years ago with the mistress' first husband, Walter Harman of Washington, D. C.

The Ingalls admitted that Dora was never paid, except for one year since 1907, but maintained that she was "one of the family" and not a servant and that they had provided for her in other ways.

Mrs. Ingalls was hopeful to the time of the verdict and disclosed, while the jury was out, that she had attempted to see her onetime maid. Dora left for St. Louis, saying she never wanted to see the Ingalls again.

"I just wanted to make a last effort," said Mrs. Ingalls. "Dora would not see me. Now my responsibility is finished. My conscience is clear."

Separated by FBI.

The Ingalls and the maid were separated five months ago by the FBI at the time of their arrest.

Mrs. Ingalls maintained that she still felt a "moral responsibility" for the Negro woman up until her unsuccessful attempt to visit her.

They first met in Athens, Ala., when Mrs. Ingalls was Miss Elizabeth Kimball, a missionary school teacher, and Dora was a pupil of 13 or 14.

After Miss Kimball married Harman, she brought Dora to Washington as a "protege" and personal maid.

Following her divorce from Harman in 1917, she married Ingalls and Dora went along to Lynn and Boston and, last year, to California.

The FBI entered the case as a result of a report by the Berkeley, Calif., police who had figured in an attempt by the Ingalls' daughter, Mrs. Helen Roberts, 27, "to free" Dora at Berkeley.

Both Mrs. Roberts and a daughter of Mrs. Ingalls by Harman, Mrs. Ruth Adtendyk, 39, of Chicago, testified against their parents.

Leaves Fight for Freedom

Despite Brain Operation

PITTSBURGH, PA.—Millard F. Wright, habitual criminal who underwent a rare brain operation in an effort to rid himself of an uncontrollable urge to steal, lost his fight for freedom.

Judge G. Malcolm McDonald ruled that the Leechburg, Pa., convict must stay in prison until it has been determined whether the delicate operation, which he underwent in April, had cured his criminal tendencies.

The judge said Wright would be sent to Western penitentiary, where a constant check will be kept on his progress toward becoming a useful citizen.

In Wright's latest tangle with the law, he was charged with 10 burglaries in the Pittsburgh district. He sought freedom on the grounds that he was "legally sane" at the time the robberies occurred in 1945.
